

THE SOLUTION: SYSTEMIC CHANGE

Talk promotes systemic change by engaging, educating, and empowering 3 generations — teens, 20-somethings, and parents — to think about sexuality and the way it's "taught" in a fundamentally different way.

Master Facilitators provide guidance, support, and oversight to our Near Peer Educators in the classroom and work with students' parents in an after-school setting.

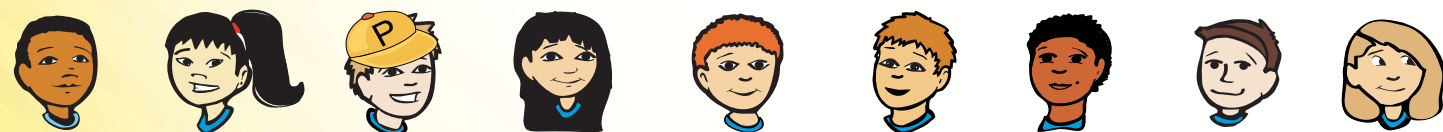

NEAR PEER EDUCATORS

We recruit thoughtful, engaging, recent college grads. We train them extensively on Talk's approach, methods, and core beliefs & values.

SPREAD THE WORD

Near Peer Educators are deployed to work in schools with students in the classroom. They are also a resource among their own peers (other 20-somethings).

MASTER FACILITATORS

Our core staff is comprised of experienced educators in their late 20's and early 30's.

PARENTS FEEL EMPOWERED TO TALK

They talk to their kids about sex. They are also a resource for other parents.

EMPOWERED ENLIGHTENED ADVOCATES FOR LIFE

Teens are informed. They make responsible decisions about their relationships and sexual health. Someday, they will speak with their own children about sex. Over time, the cycle of not talking and the problems that go with it improve.
